

There are no encouraging words from General Grant. He is gradually sinking to rest.

Business enterprise in Americans sometimes crops out at an early age. The youngest member of the New York cotton exchange is a lad of 15, and the oldest a veteran of 82. The two are great friends.

Miss Ada Sweet has the womanly touch to her pension office in Chicago. She has the principle of civil service on her side, and the question is, whether the president will ignore them or not. The little woman has given President Cleveland a very hard nut to crack.

The Rock county board of supervisors wanted a bill passed in the legislature to authorize the keeping of vagrants on bread and water for ninety days. The bill was passed, but Governor Rusk vetoed it on the ground that such a punishment was cruel and unusual, an opinion to which is earnestly assented.

The Mackinac hotel in Chicago was too much for the republicans. Harrison is re-elected mayor, but by a smaller majority than before. The gambling influence in Chicago is too much for the republicans, especially when a fair vote and an honest count is out of the question.

The managers of the New Orleans exposition have concluded to reduce the price of admission during the evening from 50 cents to 25 cents, with the hope of inducing a larger attendance of the resident population, who so far have displayed but little interest in the show. It is claimed that the exhibits can be seen to even better advantage under the electric light than under the glare of the sun.

The sale of the Sney collection of pictures in New York netted $406,000. This is the greatest sale of pictures ever made in the United States, and shows that money is lying around loose. The big prize of the auction was carried off by John L. Mitchell, a son of President Alexander Mitchell, of the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, securing John Broton's "Evening in the Hamlet" of Finis-torre at the enormous price of $18,200.

The country will be glad if the new commissioner of the general land office shall succeed in protecting the government from the rapacity of land-grabbers, aliens and speculative cattle dealers. He has suspended the issue of warrants in certain sections of Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas and in the whole of Colorado, with the declared intention of investigating all the entries with such care as shall protect the government from plunder. It may be a bigger job than he supposes, but the land-grabbers have defied the law long enough, and if there is power enough in the government to down them, it ought to be done.

"Bob" Ingersoll, is as full of chat as ever, and he never loses a chance to spit out what he thinks no matter how it will offend his best friend. It was a surprise to the republican party of the nation that "Bob" did not take a more lively interest in the last presidential campaign, especially when, in 1876, he made a speech in favor of Blaine at Cincinnati, which not only gave the orator national fame—but which went down in history as the most dashing piece of oratory ever heard in the United States. There is no doubt Ingersoll at that time thought that Blaine was the most consummate statesman of his day and the greatest leader of men this country had seen since the days of Clay. But the whirlwind of time brought their friendship to a close, and simply out of religious differences Ingersoll began to grow lukewarm towards the man whose shining lance of oratory glittered in the sunlight of the nation, and who had been foremost in every battle for the past twenty-five years for human liberty and human progress.

The other day, "Bob" sat quietly in a New York hotel, like a "moon-faced cherub framed in gold," always ready to talk, and he did talk. He started out by saying that a lawyer who has himself for a client, makes a fool of himself, and that Blaine had no business to manage his own case in the campaign. Then "Bob" let himself out in his usual fashion, which in substance, was this: "Blaine lost his election by refusing to vote in Maine. He had said that prohibition was a local question. It was being settled in Maine. It was a local duty to have helped to settle it. He should have gone to the polls and voted his convictions. If he had done so all the long haired cranks of the country would have left St. John on the instant. Blaine would not have lost a republican vote by it. He gave himself away in the Irish movement. The Roman church never came to Blaine because of his desertion of her. There was an ulterior purpose, and a mighty one, that turned the entire Catholic clergy in his favor. The republican party does not want the dynamite of Fenian, British-hating disturbers. That gang are naturally democratic, not republican. The clergy business was bad. If Blaine had not been managing his own case he would have set down on Durendal so hard as to have left only a greasy spot of him. But Blaine said worse things than Burehard. He said we had divorced church and state in this country; that countries had existed without state, but no country could prosper without church. Why, it had been in politics. I would have called a meeting that night to denounce him, though I had made fifty speeches in his favor before, unless he had preferred to retract and recant that utterance. That declaration lost him more votes than Burehard, and his refusal to vote in Maine lost him his election."

HOPING FOR AN EARLY RELEASE.
Gen. Grant in the Valley of the Shadow of Death.
Chicago, April 8.—The following telegram was received, giving the condition of Gen. Grant Tuesday and Tuesday night:
New York, April 8.—The news from the bedside of Gen. Grant Tuesday was bad all day. It began only in the morning with the report of a sudden change from the worse, which later was found to have been caused by the progress of the cancer, destroying the walls of an artery and causing hemorrhage, by which the patient lost a teaspoonful of blood.
This left him much weaker, and during the day his pulse varied, while his temperature rose to 101.
During the forenoon Gen. Grant continued to grow weaker and took food under protest. There were very few callers during the day, and no one was allowed to see him except Dr. Newman, ex-Senator Charles, his physician, and the members of his family. At 4 o'clock Dr. Barker, Sands, Shady and Douglas found it was impossible to make a thorough examination of the patient's throat, owing to his debilitated condition. All agreed that the cancer had grown, and that no change could be made in the mode of treatment. Clydes Grant, son of Orville Grant, said that it was doubtful if the general lived through the night. He had been sleeping some, and appeared cheerful, and would occasionally smile to those near him. Dr. Newman, in conversation with the general, told him that everything seemed to be his friend. The general replied: "Yes, I have also many friends on the other side, and they are waiting for me. I hope they will not have to wait long."

The watch upon the general was kept up all day very closely. It was no longer necessary that the cancer should be the danger point, the rupture of the artery being one of the precursors of death. His voice remained strong at evening, but the fever was not allayed and the pulse fluttered and fell some. The physicians were gloomy. The family had made up their minds that the end was close. Mrs. Grant had been so much affected that she refused to take her meals, and would not leave the general's room, although she was rarely at the side.

At 6 o'clock, while the general was awake, Dr. Shady returned with a lot of surgical instruments for use in case of violent hemorrhage to prevent death by choking. Dr. Douglas was called to have him back, since the hemorrhage, and that no change could be made in the mode of treatment. Clydes Grant, son of Orville Grant, said that it was doubtful if the general lived through the night. He had been sleeping some, and appeared cheerful, and would occasionally smile to those near him. Dr. Newman, in conversation with the general, told him that everything seemed to be his friend. The general replied: "Yes, I have also many friends on the other side, and they are waiting for me. MISCELLANEOUS.

A man near the city of Janesville was made that reason had been destroyed. This was not entirely due to the influence of opiates. He talked over some of his travels in other lands. He chatted with his children, in his favor, at the White House. He conversed with his old cabinet officers, and now and then he was again on the battle field. His flight was not of a violent type at any time. He seemed natural throughout in his actions and his tone.

ELECTION NEWS.
A Big Claim in Michigan—Wisconsin in General—City Votes.

CHICAGO, April 8.—A Detroit special to The Times says: The latest returns indicate that More, Fusion candidate for judge of the supreme court, has not far from 40,000 majority over Cooley (Rep.). Whitman (Dem.) and Field (Greenback), fusion, are elected by a majority of 20,000 majority. The entire Democratic ticket in Detroit is elected by about 5,000 majority. The Prohibition vote was insignificant.

The Election in Wisconsin.
MADISON, Wis., April 8.—The judicial vote throughout the state has been light. In Madison the Democrats made a clean sweep and elected H. N. Houston, mayor, and Don Bradford, treasurer.

Municipal Elections.
CHICAGO, April 8.—Returns from 176 out of the 174 precincts in the city give Harrison for mayor, 38,053; Smith, 35,051; Harrison's majority, 3,002. Returns from 135 precincts give Davine, for treasurer, 31,305; Finney, 31,011; Davine's majority, 331.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Republican candidate for mayor of Springfield, Ill., has a majority of 1,000 over John McCreary.

St. Louis, April 8.—The municipal election passed off quietly Tuesday. An exceptionally heavy vote was cast. Harrison, from one-half of the city gave Dr. R. Francis, Democrat, 1,700 majority over Ewing, Republican, for mayor. The entire Democratic ticket will probably be elected by majorities ranging from 500 to 8,000.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Senator Smith, Jr., Republican, is elected mayor by a majority of nearly 4,000. The remainder of the Republican ticket is elected with slightly smaller majorities except Caldwell for police judge, who is defeated by Fitzgerald by nearly 1,000, and probably the candidate for justice of the peace.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 8.—With the exception of Dayton, where only councilmen were elected, all Ohio cities made Republican gains Monday over the unusual vote of last fall.

THE RAVEN RUN COLLIERY DISASTER.
A Rained Mine—Digging for the Victims—All Undoubtedly Dead.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., April 8.—The damage to Raven Run colliery by Monday's cave-in is so great that it is hardly likely that the mine will ever be opened. The point at which the men were working was directly under the fall, and there can be no doubt that they were instantly killed. Two gangs of men are at work, twenty in all, trying to recover the bodies of the ten victims. Experienced miners say a week must elapse before any are reached, and it may take months to recover them all. Six of the unfortunate men were married. They have left behind their widows, thirty-nine children.

Knocked the Warden Down and Escaped.
WILMINGTON, Del., April 8.—Bob Adams, a notorious burglar, escaped a two-year sentence, Harry Rawson, John Bodine, Caleb Straynor and two other prisoners escaped from the Kent county jail Tuesday afternoon. The prisoners were at dinner, when one of them assaulted Warden Bush with an iron bar knocking him senseless. They then forced off the iron door leading into the street, and six had escaped when the sheriff came upon the scene and prevented a complete jail delivery. Pursuit was given but none of the prisoners have been captured.

The Pistol in School.
AUGUSTA, Me., April 8.—A shooting affair occurred in a school in Gardiner the other day. The teacher was holding a recitation, when suddenly a pistol shot rang through the school-room, and Lazie Hunt, a pupil, screamed and fell to the floor. It was found that the ball had penetrated her cheek and lodged in the roof of her mouth, whence it was extracted. The girl recovered. On investigation it was ascertained that the pistol was fired by a boy named Storrs, 15 years old, also a pupil at the school, and it is claimed he aimed the weapon at the girl.

Want the Order Reversed.
WASHINGTON CITY, April 8.—A delegation of citizens from Dakota called on President Cleveland Tuesday and requested him to revoke the order suspending the executive order of President Arthur which threw open to settlement the lands in the Windom Indian reservation. The president referred the delegation to Secretary Lamar who gave them a hearing and afterwards promised that he would give the case his early consideration.

The Illinois scandal.
CHICAGO, April 8.—A special from Washington City to The Tribune says that it has been proposed to Col. Morrison that he should withdraw from the senatorial contest in Illinois in favor of some other candidate, to which Morrison is said to have replied that he would do so when it was certain that some one else's chances were better than his, and that he could not withdraw until the Democratic side of the senate was full again by the election of Bridges' successor. It is also said no further effort will be made in this direction until the event above referred to has taken place. Name mentioned in the contest is that of Morrison's widow, who are Brown, Lambert Tree and ex-Governor Palmer.

The arrival Sunday night in the city of Andrew Welch, R. W. Corbett, J. R. Corbett and E. R. Kibbenburg, has aroused considerable interest, as it is believed they are here to discuss the senatorial question. They are Democratic members of the Illinois legislature.

The Most Precious of Gifts.
Health is undeniably a more precious gift than riches, honor or power. Who would exchange it for these, the chief objects of human ambition? It is the fountain of life, the source of all our joys, the basis of all our hopes, the foundation of all our greatness. It is the most precious of gifts, and the one that we should most carefully guard and cherish.

THE CITY ELECTION.

A General Sweep by the Persistent Democrats.

A Light Vote Which is Fatal to the Republicans.

The Council Democratic by One Majority.

The municipal election passed off quietly yesterday, and the result is very satisfactory to the democrats. Both parties placed in nomination strong tickets, the republican ticket being exceptionally worthy the united support of the party, but the battle was with the side which did the hardest work, and the democrats got there with all the city ticket except the candidate for city clerk. Mr. Church being re-elected by 89 majority. The democrats, therefore, elect Mr. Wiggins mayor, Mr. Blount city treasurer and Mrs. Whiting and St. John school commissioners-at-large. Out of the five aldermen the democrats take three.

Comparatively speaking, there was a light vote. It was 242 less than at the election last fall, and as a rule, a loss of votes operates against the republicans. One of the strong points in the democratic party, especially in a municipal election, is its enthusiasm and persistence. With the rank and file of the party it is anything to win, and with this spirit in the party, from the highest to the lowest of its members, vote and work, and this is why so many of the municipal elections to the west are carried by the democracy.

There was a falling off of 242 votes from the returns of last fall, and this loss made a sufficient difference in the republican vote to defeat the ticket.

The following is the result of the vote in the city:
